San Francisco, Calif., 03-20-2012 – StartupFactory, LLC, a strategic communications firm specializing in early stage technology businesses, announced today that they have been chosen to develop a brand awareness campaign for White Plains, NY-based, VARTA Microbattery, Inc. The centerpiece of the initiative is a print media campaign targeting OEM manufacturers of small mobile devices. While the VARTA brand is well known in Western Europe, brand awareness is limited in the United States and Canada. The objective of the branding program is to develop top-of-mind awareness in the North American segment.

Making history with VARTA Microbattery

“In Western Europe, the VARTA Microbattery brand has been associated with battery quality and innovation for over 120 years.”, states Robert Goldberg, President and Founder at StartupFactory, LLC. “We will leverage this history of technology leadership and educate the North American market about the brand, and its significant contributions to the global battery industry. The print media plan includes such publications as Canadian Electronics, Electronic Component News and Electronic Products. The print plan will be supported with an HTML email blast to a qualified database. The ads and blast will feature the new Li-Ion CoinPower cells, mercury free cells, HT Series (high-temperature) cells and custom power packs designed to OEM specifications.
